“ Hey momma, I see Duman miraculously found you. It's amazing BC I had nothing to do with it. I can truly thank you for those kids you had me watching and the boot you kept in my a think I did pretty alright with my little man. He's something the main thing that keeps me pressing on. He looks up to me like I looked up to you and I can't let him down BC you never let me down.

Thanks foe being you to me. I really miss you. I've been making some changes in my life for the better, finding my inner peace. I only wish you were here in flesh to cuss me out lol just to make things a little easier. Weird but you raised me this way. I have something I'm looking into. I know your watching me so I'm sure you know what and who. You've never steered me wrong on these things, so if I could have your spiritual blessing to help me through it, that would be great.

I was stopping by to say hi. I love you and FYI I wish people would quit saying time heals because the more days I go without you the more painful it is.

PS my son is smart!! I didn't even know you could upload pics on here. So I'm going to drop a few myself 🤔💙 I love you always momma. Stay with me.

“ Every day I wake up I thank God for sending you to get me. Words cannot describe how much I miss you. We all have our regrets and one of mine's is I wish I gave you what you gave me. You are the reason for every step I take in life. You gave Me strength, courage, motivation, and all the tough love I ever needed to keep me on my toes. I miss you so much, I wish I would have came to that last Chile supper you wanted, I wish you were here to see my daughter, it's so funny she reminds me of you. I can't hold back my tears as I write this message. I want so bad to hear you voice one more time. This may just me a note taker with a picture of you on it but it means so much more to me.

I know your here with me BC at times I can fee you. I know your watching me because I make it through situations with my eyes closed not knowing how I got out. The you in me has brought me so far.

I'm sure you'd be surprised who I became. I finally joined the military. And the latest I'm also a police officer. I know you were there every step of the way. Weather I felt your warm spirit, your tough love or herd you voice telling me “get ur ass back out there”.

Recently I got promoted!!! I'll be a sergeant in the military. I'm so excited. I only wish you were here to share this experience with me.

Gosh I want to write you everything on here. I have endless built up emotions and hurt and love and I just want to share everything with you.

I miss you so much mama. I love you. Please continue watching over me every day. Until next time

“ One of my fondest memories of Yvonne was when I first starting attending Greater St. Mark and joined the Mass Choir. I wwas in a Recovery Program and it was Choir Day. The choir had helped me get my dress and I didn't have the shoes. I had settled with wearing what I had. The day before, Yvonne showed up with me a new pair of shoes. It wasn't so much as the shoes, it was the kindness in her heart to perform this services. Yvonne was a wonderful and loving person. She helped me learn to open my mouth and say how I feel and stand my ground.

On behalf of my husband and myself, our prayers go out to the family during their time of celebration. We loved her, but God loved her more.
